The safety of visitors to any Steward Observatory facility is the responsibility of each visitor's Observatory host. It is the responsibility of the host to be sure that each visitor complies with all Safety Rules and Procedures. This includes providing each visitor with personal protective equipment to wear when appropriate. Examples include hard hat, eye and hearing protection. If you are the host, be sure you know the Safety Rules and Procedures well and may include procedures such as Lockout/Tagout. Be sure to inform the Telescope Operator or Site/Operations Manager prior to the visit, you will be escorting visitors into the area.
